

Basic1.PY

Beginner Level (Basics)

Create a variable name and assign your name to it. Print it.

Store your age in a variable and print whether it's greater than 18.

Write a script that takes two numbers as input and prints their sum.

Write a script that takes two numbers as input and prints whether the first is greater, smaller, or equal to the second.  (your requested one)

Convert a string "100" into an integer and add 50 to it.

Intermediate Level (Applied Logic)

Write a script that calculates the area of a rectangle (length × width).

Take a student's marks as input and print "Pass" if marks ≥ 40 , otherwise "Fail."

Create a list of 5 numbers. Print the largest and smallest using operators.

Write a script that checks if a given number is even or odd using %.

Store three salaries in variables and print the highest salary using comparison operators.

Advanced Level (Thinking + Combination)

Write a script that takes a number and prints whether it is divisible by both 3 and 5.

Create a program that asks for a username and password. If both match predefined values, print "Login Successful," else "Access Denied."

Write a script that calculates the simple interest: $SI = (P \times R \times T) / 100$.

Take a string input and check if the word "Python" is present using membership operator (in).

Create two lists of cities. Print the common cities using membership + logical operators.